Margaret Brown
Margaret is an Adjunct Research Fellow at the University of South Australia. Her work involves research, consulting and policy development in the areas of advance care directives, advance care planning, decision-making capacity, guardianship and ethical decision making at the end of life including resuscitation decisions for older people. In 2014 Margaret was involved with the implementation of the Advance Care Directives Act 2013 and the introduction of the Resuscitation Plan-7 Step Pathway Policy throughout SA Health.
In 2013 Margaret was appointed to the SA Minister of Health’s Advisory Committee on End of Life Matters. This committee worked towards improving the care of people dying in South Australia (SA), including those who choose to die at home. This followed an intensive period of supporting the new Advance Care Directives Act 2013 through the SA Parliament.
She is also collaborating with the Public Advocate on various research projects about supported decision making.

Mary Dickson
Mary is a registered nurse with significant experience leading and operationalising clinical quality improvement systems and processes to support best outcomes in health service delivery. This has included roles in both the tertiary and primary health systems as a service manager and project lead.
Mary is currently employed in an innovation and design role at the Adelaide Primary Health Network and is involved in service development and improvement initiatives which support ageing populations and end of life care.

Dr Chris Moy
Dr Chris Moy is a General Practitioner (GP) working in Parkside with a long standing involvement in the areas of aged care, end of life decision making, palliative care and digital health at both state and national levels.
Chris is a former member of the Expert Advisory Group of the SA Advance Care Directives Review and SA Health End of Life Working Group which developed the Resuscitation Plan-7 Step Pathway that is currently being implemented across health in South Australia. He also participated in the development of the GP Partners GP Palliative Shared Care Model and he is the current Chair of its Operations Consultative Committee.
He is the current Chair of the Adelaide Primary Health Network Central Adelaide Clinical Council, and member of the My Health Record Expansion Program Steering Group of the Australian Digital Health Agency.
Chris is a Federal Australian Medical Association (AMA) Council Member and is the current Chair of the Federal AMA Ethics and Medico-legal Committee. He is also the Vice-President of the AMA South Australia.
Judith Smith AM

Judith has been involved in the health care industry for over 50 years. She has worked in acute and community nursing in both public and private settings. She is a member of the Northern Adelaide Local Health Network (NALHN) Governing Council and the NALHN Risk and Audit Committee.

Judith has also been the consumer representative on the Pharmacy Regulation Authority of South Australia since its inception some years ago and a consumer representative on the South Australian Health and Medical Research Institute Consumer Advisory Committee.

In June 2017, Judith was awarded an Order of Australia as part of the Queen’s Birthday Honours list for significant service to community nursing through the pharmacy regulation and health practitioner roles in nursing and aged care.

Kate Swetenham

Kate is the Clinical Director of Southern Adelaide Palliative Services. She was the former Chair of the Statewide Palliative Care Clinical Network (2012-2015), and in that time initiated many of the strategies from the Statewide Palliative Care Services Plan 2009-2016.

Kate was awarded a Master of Science in 2017 focusing on communication dynamics encountered in an early introductory clinic to palliative care that she established in 2011.

Kate is the recipient of the Churchill Fellowship in 2017 and her area of interest is to understand the enablers and barriers to implementing an end of life care strategy from international experience in the United Kingdom, Ireland and Canada.

Prof Jennifer Tieman

Professor Jennifer Tieman is a Matthew Flinders Fellow, Director of CareSearch and Dean Research of the College of Nursing and Health Sciences.

As Director and Chief Investigator of the CareSearch project she undertakes research on knowledge retrieval and knowledge dissemination, and investigates approaches that encourage the use of evidence in health, particularly in palliative care and end of life care. Jennifer is also a Chief Investigator for the National Health and Medical Research Council awarded Centre of Research Excellence in End of Life Care and leads their knowledge translation stream.
