

Office for the Ageing
Housing for Life: Designed for Living

The co-designed perspective

LIVING with OTHERS

Precinct SHARING and PRIVACY

Accessibility and MOBILITY

WELLBEING and a Sense of PRIDE

Improved
AFFORDABILITY

Build QUALITY

Well-designed homes and age friendly neighbourhoods have a critical role in enabling people to remain independent and connected with their communities as they age.

A number of industries support people to age well, however significant untapped potential exists particularly in relation to housing and urban design.

Our ageing population is an economic opportunity for South Australia, and the strong role of older people as consumers, market drivers and co-designers, is recognised.

This unique approach to design, with and by older people, builders, architects, planners, developers and aged care providers, delivers homes and neighbourhoods designed for living.

To find out more, visit:

www.sahealth.sa.gov.au/officefortheageing

