What are Priority Care Centres?

The Priority Care Centres are led by general practitioners with additional support from specialist hospital trained nurses.

A range of other services are available if they are needed, including:

- Radiology (X-rays) and pathology (blood tests)
- Pharmacy services
- Community-based health services for follow-up care

The Priority Care Centres do not provide ongoing services. Should you need follow up care please continue to see your usual general practitioner (GP).

Patients are triaged according to their clinical needs, wait times may vary.

An emergency department is always available for you if you need one. If your condition gets worse you can go to an emergency department.

Why am I being offered the choice of attending a Priority Care Centre?

Your condition has been assessed as non-life threatening but requiring priority treatment which makes you eligible for a Priority Care Centre.

You have the option to attend the Priority Care Centre or wait for your treatment to be provided at the emergency department.

What are the benefits of attending a Priority Care Centre?

- You are likely to receive the treatment you require in a more timely manner without having to wait in an emergency department.
- The PCC is a GP clinic environment. It is welcoming and often quieter environment than an emergency department.
- If required, the emergency department staff can assist you with transport arrangements at no charge.

Is there a fee involved for treatment at a Priority Care Centre?

No. You will not incur any additional costs provided you have your Medicare card on hand.

How am I transferred to a Priority Care Centre?

If you choose to attend a Priority Care Centre and require transport, please speak to the clinician in the emergency department who referred you. They will arrange transport for you.

What happens after my treatment at a Priority Care Centre?

After your treatment at the Priority Care Centre you will be provided with a discharge summary outlining the treatment you received and any further recommendations. Your regular GP will also receive a copy.

If you have a My Health Record, the information can also be uploaded there.

If you require additional community support services as part of your immediate care needs, the appropriate referrals will be organised by the Priority Care Centre.
